PhD: Risk analysis for different levels of overall budget for natural hazard policy and management, considering the high variance of budget requirements from year to year [1]

Supervisor:

Prof David Pannell, University of Western Australia, david.pannell@uwa.edu.au [2]

Emergency services organisations receive a certain budget allocation, which typically is sufficient to deal with the community's demand for emergency services in a typical year. However, there are years when emergencies are unusually numerous or serious, such that this budget falls well short of requirements. When weighing up these different types of years when setting an overall budget, how should governments strike a balance?
